

Let us do the legwork: Diagnosis and treatment for varicose veins.

Free seminar
Friday, December 20, 2013
Noon

WOMEN'S ADVANTAGE

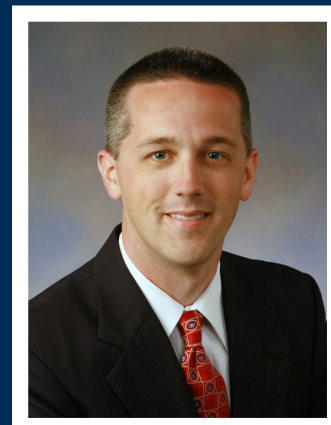

Varicose veins can be embarrassing to some people, but most importantly, they can be a sign of a serious medical problem. Venous reflux, or "leaky valves," is often the underlying cause of varicose veins. At the UF Health Comprehensive Vein Center we offer the latest in diagnostic and treatment solutions for the underlying causes of varicose veins and deep vein thrombosis.

Friday, December 20, 2013 • Noon

UF Health Shands Cancer Hospital
1515 SW Archer Road

FREE parking for seminar in garage or with valet at front entrance. Reservations are requested.

For reservations, go to UFHealth.org/events or call 352.733.0000.

Robert Feezor, MD, FACS
Vascular Surgery and Endovascular Therapy
UF Health Comprehensive
Vein Center